Motivation

I strive to be an excellent worker: willing to learn and to accept correction when necessary, pleasant to my co-workers and to customers, responsible and taking responsibility in all my job duties, both willing to take the initiative and to follow orders, as appropriate.

In all things, I try to allow this verse to guide me in my work ethic:

Colossians 3:22-23 (from the World English Bible) "Servants, obey in all things those who are your masters according to the flesh, not just when they are looking, as men pleasers, but in singleness of heart, fearing God. And whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord, and not for men."

Job Skills

I strive toward a high work ethic and tend to be self-motivated, and I'm used to picking up new skills quickly. I love learning new things. I've had decades of experience in office applications, especially spreadsheets and word processors, and have extensive database and SQL experience. I was a drafter for fifteen years, so I'm detail-oriented and have written thousands of lines of code in the Microstation VBA API.

I peeked and poked my way through Commodore BASIC as a kid, learning line numbers and GOSUBS and then unlearning them when QuickBasic came out in the 90s. That started a lifelong hobby in programming; since then, I've had the pleasure of working in Visual Basic, VBA, and VB.NET this century. Thanks to the Coding Boot Camp at UT, I'm becoming quite proficient using JavaScript for front-end and back-end applications in both browser and Node.js environments. Check out my portfolio (listed below) if you'd like to see more.
